Case No. 5:20-cv-03664-LHK

JOINT CASE MANAGEMENT STATEMENT

Judge: Hon. Lucy H. Koh
Courtroom 8 – 4th Floor
Date: May 26, 2021
Time: 2:00 p.m.

CASE NO. 5:20-cv-03664-LHK

Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 16, Civil Local Rules 16-9 and 16-10, the Standing Order for All Judges of the Northern District of California, the Court's Case Management Order of March 18, 2021 (Dkt. No. 116), and in advance of the Further Case Management Conference set by the Court for Wednesday, May 26, 2021, at 2:00 p.m., Plaintiffs and Defendant, Google LLC ("Google"), submit this Joint Case Management Statement to report the parties' progress since the previous Joint Case Management Statement filed on March 17 (Dkt. No. 115).

I. JURISDICTION AND SERVICE

Google has been served and the Court has jurisdiction over this matter.

II. FACTS

The parties have no new facts to add at this time, although discovery is ongoing.

III. LEGAL ISSUES

The parties have no new legal issues to present at this time.

IV. MOTIONS

Motions Decided Since the Last Joint CMC Statement

The Court granted Google's administrative motion to seal portions of the parties' joint dispute letter regarding log preservation. Dkt. No. 126. The Court granted Benjamin Hewitt and Kimberly Woodruff's motion to relate the Hewitt v. Google case to this case. Dkt No. 130. The Court granted Google's motion to seal the courtroom for the parties' April 29, 2021 discovery hearing before Magistrate Judge van Keulen. Dkt. No. 143. The Court issued an order related to the search terms to be applied to Google's custodians. Dkt. No. 148. The Court granted Google's motion to seal portions of the parties' April 23, 2021 joint discovery submission for Magistrate Judge van Keulen. Dkt. No. 152. And the Court granted Google's motion to seal portions of the parties' May 6, 2021 joint discovery submission for Magistrate Judge van Keulen. Dkt. No. 160. One motion for admission pro hac vice has been filed and granted. Dkt. Nos. 158, 161.

Pending Motions

Pursuant to the Court's Order (Dkt No. 138) granting the Stipulation re Leave to File Second Amended Complaint and Deadline to Respond to Second Amended Complaint (Dkt No. 136), Google filed a motion to dismiss Counts Six and Seven of the Second Amended Complaint on May 17, 2021 (Dkt No. 164). Google did not file any Answer. The hearing on Google's motion to dismiss has been scheduled for September 30, 2021 at 1:30 PM.

Anticipated Motions

Plaintiffs' Statement:

Plaintiffs anticipate moving for class certification and may also seek summary judgment and/or adjudication on certain claims or issues. Plaintiffs also anticipate filing additional discovery disputes with Magistrate Judge van Keulen.

Google's Statement:

Google anticipates opposing class certification and moving for summary judgment. Google also anticipates briefing additional discovery disputes for Magistrate Judge van Keulen.

V. AMENDMENT OF PLEADINGS

On April 15, 2021, the Court, pursuant to stipulation of the parties, granted Plaintiffs' request for leave to file their Second Amended Complaint. Dkt No. 138; Dkt No. 136-1 (SAC).

VI. EVIDENCE PRESERVATION

Plaintiffs' Statement: As discussed below, Plaintiffs have prepared a submission for Magistrate Judge van Keulen regarding Google's refusal to preserve relevant data logs.

Google's Statement: Google is preserving evidence in compliance with its discovery obligations. As to the data logs, Magistrate Judge van Keulen has already ruled that "Google need not suspend its standard retention periods applicable to data logs that reflect event-level data." Calhoun et al. v. Google LLC, No. 5:20-cv-5146, Dkt. 174. Because the logs at issue in Brown are subsumed within the logs at issue in Calhoun, the Magistrate Judge already held that the ruling in Calhoun would apply equally in Brown. Dkt. 147-1 at 1 (in response to Plaintiffs raising this precise issue, Judge van Keulen wrote: "See Order filed in related case, Calhoun, et al., v. Google (20-5146)"). Therefore, the issue Plaintiffs intend to raise with Magistrate Judge van Keulen is moot.

VII. DISCLOSURES

The parties exchanged initial disclosures on September 8, 2020. Plaintiffs served amended disclosures on March 16, 2021.

1 VIII. DISCOVERY

2 A. Case Schedule

3 The Court adopted an initial discovery plan in its September 3, 2020 Case Management
4 Order. Dkt. No. 61. The parties believe a modification to the schedule is necessary, which is 5 discussed below in Section X.

6 B. Written Discovery Since the Last Joint CMC Statement

7 Google responded to Plaintiffs' second set of interrogatories on March 29, 2021. Google
8 responded to Plaintiffs' third set of RFPs on April 16, 2021. Google responded to Plaintiffs' third
9 set of interrogatories on April 16, 2021 and provided amended responses on May 12. Plaintiffs
10 served their fourth set of RFPs, fourth set of interrogatories, and third set of RFAs on April 11 15. Plaintiffs granted Google a two-week extension to respond to the interrogatories and RFAs, 12 which are now due on May 31, 2021, and a one-week extension to respond to the RFPs, which are 13 now due on May 24, 2021.

14 Google served its third set of interrogatories to Plaintiffs on April 21, 2021. Google granted
15 Plaintiffs a two-week extension to respond to the interrogatories, which are now due on June 4, 16 2021. On April 30, 2021, Google served its first and second set of RFAs; first and second set of 17 interrogatories; and first and second set of RFPs to Plaintiff Monique Trujillo. Plaintiff's deadline
18 to respond is May 31, 2021. Plaintiffs served revised responses to interrogatory no. 2 on May 6, 19 2021 and verified amended responses to interrogatory nos. 1, 4, and 5 on May 12, 2021. Plaintiffs 20 also served their revised responses to RFP No. 6 on May 6, 2021.

21 C. Depositions

22 Plaintiffs' Statement:

23 On April 14, 2021, Plaintiffs deposed a Google representative regarding Google's collection
24 of data from users who visit the Court's website. Google's representative confirmed that Google
25 scripts embedded within the Court's website collect information from users when they are in a 26 private browsing mode. Google's representative also confirmed that Google does not collect what 27 is called the "X-Client-Data header" when people browse in Incognito mode. Tr. 129:5-10. The 28 upshot is that records of Google's collection of that data from private browsing (if preserved and

1 produced by Google) can be used to identify putative class members. Google's response below
2 shows that, at a minimum, the X-Client-Data header is sent to Google Ad Manager, Google's service
3 which serves ads.

4 On April 27, 2021, Plaintiffs served a second Notice of Deposition Pursuant to Rule 30(b)(6)
5 seeking information regarding Google's logs, databases, and storage systems containing users'
6 private browsing data, as well as Google's ability to correlate private browsing data with users and 7 their devices, such as by using "twice-baked" cookie identifiers only visible to Google and 8 undisclosed to websites and consumers. Plaintiffs believe a 30(b)(6) deposition on these issues is 9 appropriate, particularly in light of Google's efforts to stonewall Plaintiffs' discovery into these 10 topics. Google finally proposed dates for this deposition on May 19, but Google has not yet provided 11 any formal response or objections.

12 Google's Statement: Google made its Product Manager, Jesse Adkins, available to testify
13 regarding the data that Google receives to provide the services requested by the Court's website
14 developer. In that deposition, Mr. Adkins confirmed the facts stated in his March 1, 2021 declaration
15 submitted to the Court—namely, that Google receives certain information from the Court's website
16 so that it can provide services the Court's web developer has requested, and that, depending on the 17 user's brand of browser and settings, Google generally receives such information regardless of 18 whether the user is in private browsing mode.

19 Mr. Adkins also testified that the x-client data header is not sent in Incognito mode. That 20 fact was not a revelation; it is publicly available information. Plaintiffs' assertion that this means 21 Google can use the absence of the x-client data header "to identify putative class members" is 22 specious. The absence of the x-client data header does not mean the user is in private browsing
23 mode. For example, the x-client data header is not sent to Google Analytics, regardless of which 24 browser mode is being used and the x-client data header is never sent from any non-Chrome 25 browser.

26 Plaintiffs' theories about "twice-baked" cookies are similarly meritless. Nonetheless,
27 Google has offered to make a Rule 30(b)(6) witness available on June 16 to testify on this topic in 28 response to Plaintiffs' Rule 30(b)(6) notice.

1 D. Protective Order

2 The parties were able to agree on all terms of a protective order, which Magistrate Judge
3 Susan van Keulen approved on October 15, 2020 with one revision to the provision related to the 4 right to further relief. Dkt. No. 81.

5 E. ESI Protocol

6 The parties stipulated to an order related to ESI discovery, which Judge van Keulen approved
7 on October 15, 2020. Dkt. No. 80.

8 F. Discovery Updates

9 Plaintiffs' Statement re: Discovery for Purposes of Seeking Class Certification:

10 Google continues to stonewall Plaintiffs' efforts to obtain discovery that will enable the them
11 to identify class members and the data that Google collects from those class members. Discovery
12 so far shows that Google uses [REDACTED]

13 [REDACTED]
14 [REDACTED]
15 [REDACTED]
16 [REDACTED]
17 [REDACTED] In addition, Google
18 has something called the X-Client-Data header, which internal Google documents show is [REDACTED]

19 [REDACTED]
20 [REDACTED]
21 [REDACTED]
22 [REDACTED]
23 As a first step for class-focused discovery, Magistrate Judge van Keulen ordered Google to 24 by May 12 produce all data tied to the named plaintiffs and their devices, including the secret cookie
25 identifiers that Google characterizes as "unauthenticated." Dkt. No. 147-1 at 2. Google has so far
26 evaded this Order. Google's counsel later stated that Google would on May 12 only be producing 27 authenticated data tied to the named plaintiffs' Google accounts (meaning, none of Plaintiffs' private 28

1 browsing information). Plaintiffs asked Google how to locate any unauthenticated identifiers for
2 the named plaintiffs, but Google refused to answer.

3 In the parties' May 6 joint submission to Magistrate Judge van Keulen, Plaintiffs therefore 4 requested that their experts be permitted clean room access to an internal Google search tool to 5 search for information relating to the named plaintiffs' and their devices using both authenticated
6 and unauthenticated identifiers. Dkt No. 155; GOOG-BRWN-00028920. Google then for the first 7 time represented that "Plaintiffs can obtain the unauthenticated identifiers by opening up a new 8 private browsing session and recording the cookie values from that session." Dkt. No. 155.
9 Plaintiffs followed up with Google on May 7 to ask how to do this, but Google did not respond until 10 May 12, the deadline for its production.

11 Google responds below that the data at issue is "not linked to identifying information, such 12 as names or electronic or physical addresses." Google tellingly says nothing about devices or 13 device-identifiers.

14 Google's Statement re: Discovery for Purposes of Seeking Class Certification: There is no
15 evidence that Google has "stonewalled" Plaintiffs or evaded Magistrate Judge van Keulen's order
16 to "produce identification data for the named Plaintiffs." Dkt. 147-1 at 2. On the contrary, Google
17 has produced what it has been ordered to produce. Plaintiffs cannot use Google's data systems to 18 identify individual class members because Google's systems and practices are designed to ensure 19 that browsing data from users' private browsing, while logged out of their Google Account, are not 20 linked to identifying information, such as names or electronic or physical addresses.

21 Judge van Keulen ordered Google to produce information "provided Plaintiffs have provided 22 the necessary device information." (Id.) (emphasis added). Google produced data associated with 23 the Google account information Plaintiffs provided to Google. However, because Plaintiffs have 24 failed to provide any cookie values which Google could use to query its systems for activity not tied 25 to a Google account, Google cannot produce such data. Google even provided Plaintiffs with 26 specific steps describing how to obtain unauthenticated identifiers from their browsers. In any event,
27 Plaintiffs have yet to provide that information to Google. Once Plaintiffs provide the cookie values
28 to Google, Google will be able to produce data associated with those cookie values.

Plaintiffs' Statement re: Google's Preservation of Relevant Logs:

Internal Google documents show that [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] As such, the data in these logs can be used to identify class members. It appears, however, that Google is not preserving those logs. Plaintiffs are concerned that Google is interpreting the Court's preservation Order in the Calhoun matter to somehow permit destruction of those raw logs. No. 5:20-cv-5146, Dkt. 173-1. The Calhoun Order did not address these raw logs, and Magistrate Judge van Keulen invited further briefing, which the parties are in the process of completing. Moreover, after the parties in this case initially briefed log preservation on March 23 (Dkt No. 119), Google admitted that logged-out users can be identified and are actually tracked by the secret Google identifiers described above. E.g., Dkt No. 155 at 4-5. By contrast, in the March 23 submission, Google told the Court that "Google's systems are designed such that data generated by users who are logged out is not linked—or reasonably linkable—to [] individuals." Dkt No. 119 at 4.

Google's response below shows that these raw logs were not at issue in the Calhoun Order. This is a new issue. Plaintiffs have prepared a submission for consideration by Magistrate Judge van Keulen, and hope that Google will timely complete its portion so the parties can raise this dispute with the Court.

Google's Statement re: Preservation of Relevant Logs: After extensive briefing, two hearings, and a Rule 30(b)(6) deposition on this same issue, Magistrate Judge van Keulen ordered that Google "need not suspend its standard retention periods applicable to data logs that reflect event-level data of Chrome users in the United States." Calhoun v. Google, Dkt. 174. The Magistrate Judge's order relates to data that subsumes the so-called "raw" logs to which Plaintiffs refer. Judge van Keulen stated that the ruling in Calhoun also applies to Brown. Dkt. 147-1 at 1 ("See Order filed in related case, Calhoun, et al., v. Google (20-5146)"). Therefore, the issue Plaintiffs now seek to brief anew is already decided: Google is not required to preserve the "raw" logs.

Plaintiffs' Statement re: Cross-Use of Documents with Calhoun:

Following the parties' April 13, 2021 discovery hearing, Magistrate Judge van Keulen ordered Google to produce the transcript and exhibits from the 30(b)(6) deposition in the Calhoun

1 matter regarding certain Google server logs. Dkt No. 133-1 at 4. Magistrate Judge van Keulen also 2 ordered the parties to meet and confer regarding cross-use of documents between the actions.
 3 Plaintiffs believe that cross-use is appropriate and useful. The limited Calhoun documents produced
 4 so far strongly support Plaintiffs' view. For example, through the Calhoun deposition transcript,
 5 Plaintiffs learned for the first time about Google's secret, "twice-baked cookie" identifiers that 6 Google uses to track users' logged-out browsing activity, including private browsing activity.

7 Google's Statement re: Cross-Use of Documents with Calhoun:

8 In accordance with Magistrate Judge Van Keulen's April 30, 2021 order in Calhoun (Dkt.
 9 No. 173-1), Google is committed to meeting and conferring with Plaintiffs in both Brown and 10 Calhoun to arrive at a tailored cross-use of certain documents that will further the twin goals of 11 efficiency and fairness. The Magistrate Judge has ordered the parties to work out a reasonable plan, 12 and has discouraged indiscriminate cross-use, stating that cross-use "doesn't mean full on without 13 limitations." (4/29/2020 Hearing Tr. at 60.) Of course, unlimited cross-use is both inefficient and 14 prejudicial because it will lead to the production of irrelevant documents and broaden the scope of 15 discovery beyond what is reasonable and proportional in each case. Although Google will continue
 16 to meet and confer with Plaintiffs on a preferred approach, it has proposed to produce in both Brown
 17 and Calhoun responsive documents of overlapping custodians in both cases that have been or will 18 be produced in each of those cases.

19 Google's Statement re: Plaintiffs' Responses to Google's First and Second Sets of 20 Discovery Requests:

21 Plaintiffs have treated discovery as if it were a one-way street and have been slow in 22 responding and amending their responses to Google's discovery requests that were memorialized in 23 the parties' joint status update to the Court on May 6, 2021 (Dkt. 147-1), which has prejudiced
 24 Google's ability to learn highly relevant information related to the Named Plaintiffs and the parties'
 25 claims and defenses.

26 Requests for Admission Nos 1, 2, 4; Interrogatory Nos. 7, 9, 10; Requests for Production
 27 No. 2: Until the May 18, 2021 meet and confer, Plaintiffs refused to provide a date certain by which 28 they would commit to amending their responses to RFA Nos. 1, 2, and 4, including for RFA No. 1

1 where the Court ordered Plaintiffs to provide a date certain by May 6, 2021 (Dkt. 147-1), which
 2 they failed to do. Only on the parties' May 18, 2021 meet and confer did Plaintiffs state that they
 3 intend to serve amended responses to RFA No. 1, 2, and 4 by May 24, 2021. For Interrogatory Nos.
 4 7, 9, and 10, Plaintiffs committed for the first time on the May 18, 2021 meet and confer to provide
 5 amended responses by June 1, 2021. For RFP No. 2, Plaintiffs indicated for the first time on the 6 May 18, 2021 meet and confer that they would provide their position on whether to produce Chrome
 7 Device Settings in response to this RFP by June 1, 2021.

8 Plaintiffs' Statement re: Plaintiffs' Responses to Google's First and Second Sets of 9 Discovery Requests:

10 Plaintiffs disagree with Google's characterization of Plaintiffs' discovery efforts. The 11 parties have held productive meet and confers regarding these issues, and Plaintiffs look forward to 12 continuing them.

13 IX. SETTLEMENT AND ADR

14 No settlement discussions have taken place. Pursuant to ADR Local Rule 3-5 and Civil 15 Local Rule 16-8, on August 19, 2020, the parties met and conferred regarding the available dispute
 16 resolution options and filed their respective ADR Certifications. The parties do not believe that 17 ADR is appropriate at this time.

18 X. PROPOSED CASE SCHEDULE

19 The parties agree that additional time is necessary to complete fact discovery and jointly 20 propose extending the current deadlines by approximately 3 months. The parties respectfully
 21 request that the Court enter the Amended Case Management Order filed concurrently with this CMC
 22 statement. The parties agree to work together in good faith to resolve any discovery dispute that 23 arises in connection with briefing class certification, including through additional fact discovery if 24 necessary, and to raise any dispute with the Court.
